Employees Participate in Clean Up Event at Johnsonville State Historic Park

New Johnsonville, TN., November 16, 2020 – Employees at Chemours Johnsonville spent the day Monday, November 9, volunteering at neighboring Johnsonville State Historic Park. The morning was spent placing headstones in the African Methodist Cemetery and gathering storm debris into burn piles and removing brush throughout the hillside.

After lunch volunteers sorted several months of recyclables as part of the park's initiative for environmental sustainability, for which it completed the Platinum Recognition Level of the TN State Parks Go Green With Us Initiative in 2019. A historical tour of the park's battlegrounds and historic home sites was followed by removing brush and invasive species of plants. Ranger Noah Sinz, Ranger Joan Howe and Gerald Bowker, vice president of Friends of Johnsonville State Historic Park, were on hand to assist and provide information to the 14 volunteers about the history and landscape of the park.

Employees who volunteered include: Kristi Spurgeon, Amanda Smith, Bill Redden, Reggie Spurgeon, Rebekah Arnold, Gregg Martin, C.J. Hilton, MacKenzie Dodd, Gerald Miller, Grey Collier, Mike McMackins, Bret Parker, Caitlin Kauneckas, and Ryan Rutledge.
